Ambassador Strategy Brief

We select two local creators, Lina Kapoor and Naomi Reid, as brand ambassadors. Hyperlocal marketing helps us connect with nearby residents with tailored wellness content. Lina focuses on inclusive mobility and recovery, while Naomi promotes sustainable outdoor fitness. Together, they build community trust and drive more customers to visit our physical store.

Ambassador #1 Profile:Lina Kapoor-Toronto,ON

- Profession & Content Style

Certified yoga instructor & full-time physical therapist focusing on post-injury mobility and body positivity. She creates gentle educational content: mobility routines, injury prevention tips, slow yoga and wellness Q&As with cultural perspectives.

- Audience Overview

~45,000 followers (Instagram main, YouTube for long videos). Age 25–44: urban professionals, injury-recovery women and South Asian wellness communities seeking inclusive movement.

- Brand Alignment

She champions accessibility, body neutrality and intentional movement. Her belief in listening to your body matches the brand's inclusive and sustainable performance values.

- Community Involvement

- Runs bi-weekly free "Yoga Without Barriers" community classes
- Partners with South Asian wellness groups and Toronto clinics for recovery workshops

Store Engagement (Traffic / Community / Campaign Goals)

- Store Traffic: Host "Mobility for All" in-store recovery sessions; display her curated mobility products to draw fans to visit and shop.
- Community: Leverage her local wellness network to introduce the brand to diverse community groups.
- Campaign Goals: Co-create store digital videos and run the "Reclaim Your Routine" campaign to share brand wellness philosophy and increase customer loyalty.

Ambassador #2 Profile:Naomo Reid-Seattle,WA

- Profession & Content Style

Trail runner, environmental advocate and outdoor creator. She shares authentic trail-run vlogs, gear reviews and minimalist packing guides. Her practical, thoughtful content mixes athletic training with sustainability education.

-Audience Overview

~60,000 followers (Instagram + YouTube). Age 28–45: eco-focused runners, outdoor lovers and sustainable shoppers, highly engaged with gear and outdoor lifestyle topics.

- Brand Alignment

Her core values: intentional movement, high performance and sustainable living. She supports circular economy and prioritizes function, ethics and environmental responsibility, aligning fully with the brand.

- Community Involvement

• Hosts monthly trail clean-up runs under “Run, Respect, Repeat”

• Delivers trail safety workshops and leads beginner hikes for marginalized athlete groups

- Store Engagement (Traffic / Community / Campaign Goals)

• Store Traffic: Hold post-run in-store meetups with product demos; feature her gear picks and launch limited-edition apparel to attract local followers.

• Community: Embed the brand into her outdoor events to build a responsible, eco-friendly local brand image.

• Campaign Goals: Launch the “Green Miles Challenge” with the Seattle store to promote sustainable movement and strengthen local outdoor community reputation.

Local Impact Summary

- Strategy Overview

We partner with two local creators — Lina in Toronto, Naomi in Seattle — to drive in-store foot traffic, build local community connection, and deliver the brand's core values of inclusive, sustainable movement.

- Ambassador Strength Comparison

• Lina (Toronto): Certified yoga & physical therapist focused on gentle, accessible movement, reaching 25–44 urban professionals and injury-recovery customers through free community wellness classes.
• Naomi (Seattle): Trail runner and sustainability advocate, reaching 28–45 eco-conscious outdoor shoppers through trail cleanup runs and honest gear reviews.

- Combined Hyperlocal Value

Their complementary, non-overlapping audiences cover two core local wellness segments, turning broad brand awareness into trust-based, neighborhood-level connection near each store.

- In-Store Campaign: Community Wellness Open Day

Lina leads in-store recovery sessions in Toronto; Naomi hosts post-run community meetups in Seattle. Customers who post about the event with the store's official hashtag receive a small gift. The event boosts same-day foot traffic, converts online ambassador content reach into long-term community goodwill, and reinforces the brand's local, approachable identity.
